Druther's now - Wendy's later

Rockcastle County's busiest fast food restaurant is also one of the county's best places to get a good meal at a reasonable price. Druther's restaurant will be changing to Wendy's Restaurant this spring, but until that is complete, they will still offer the same great menu, which features burgers, chicken, fish, biscuits and gravy and a multi-item salad bar. Danny Setles and his staff are always offering specials to the public and this week is no exception. Look in this week's sale days for three money saving coupons. Look for their circular in your mail box next week, with even more specials.

Commercial driver License applicants news

State Transportation Cabinet Secretary Don C. Kelly today announced that although the intricate medical waiver deadline for Commercial Driver License (CDL) applicants has been extended to March 31, applications must be submitted before that deadline to ensure applicants will receive their CDL by April 1, the federal deadline.

Gov. Berenton Jones signed Senate Bill 72 last week, which allows commercial drivers who fail any portion of the new federally-mandated (CDL) test to retest as soon as

Livingston water supply contaminated

Livingston residents were without water for a short time last weekend, after a CSX hopper car overturned into Roundstone creek, dumping 100 tons of granulated ammonia nitrate into the creek.

Gary Asher, director of local disaster and emergency services said the car was spotted at Kentucky Powder Company in Mullins Station around 11 p.m. on Friday night.

Asher said that sometime Saturday night, the brakes on the car released and it wound up in the creek on its top. The impact from the crash busted the fiberglass top on the car, allowing the 100 tons of ammonia nitrate to go into the creek.

Asher said that CSX officials were not sure if vandalism was involved in the accident or not.

Shortly after the nitrate got into the creek, tests at the Livingston water plant indicated that the water was contaminated to the point that it was not safe to drink, according to Asher, who called in two National Guard units to help inform Livingston water users that the water was unsafe.

"The state says that drinking water is safe if it stays at 10 part per million contaminants or lower, and the water at the plant was 21 parts per million contaminated," Asher said.

However a few hours after the spill, most of the ammonia nitrate apparently dissolved because another test at the plant showed only 2 parts per million contaminants.

Kentucky Powder was going to use the chemical to make dynamite.

Rockcastle Sale Days

This week marks the start of the Signal's Rockcastle Sale Days. Local residents can register with the participating merchants which can be found on pages B-8 through B-13, to win $800 in cash during the seven week promotion. There is no purchase necessary and everyone can register as many times as they wish.

The only requirement to win, is that each one registering must put their social security number on their registration slip.

Each week the winner's social security number will be printed in a inconspicuous place in one of the ads.

To claim the week's cash prize the person with the social security number must come to the Signal office by noon on Tuesday.

The first six weeks of the promotion there will be $50 cash winners and the final week a $500 grand prize winner will be chosen.

Garrison home sustains fire damage

A faulty gas furnace is being blamed for the Wednesday morning fire at Skip and Joan Garrison's home in McGuire subdivision in Mt. Vernon.

Mt. Vernon Fire Department Captain Gary Hansel said that the fire apparently started around the furnace at approximately 9:00 a.m. Firefighters were able to contain the blaze to two rooms, but the entire house suffered extensive smoke damage.

Accident on U.S. 150 claims life

A Rockcastle County man was the third person to lose their life in a traffic related accident on Rockcastle highways this year.

Gary Reed, 30, of Rt. 3 Mt. Vernon, died Thursday night after he lost control of his 1980 Monte Carlo on Hwy. 150, 1 and 5/10 miles east of Broadhead. Rockcastle County Coroner Bill Dowell said that an autopsy indicated that Reed drowned in about two feet of water. He was thrown from his vehicle, which ended up on top of him in the creek at the foot of Hall's Hill.

Kentucky State Trooper Jack Lawless said that Reed was last seen alive around 11:30 p.m. Thursday night. The trooper said that Reed apparently lost control of his car, ran off the road and overturned several times. Lawless said that Broadhead Water Superintendent Dee Buscell spotted the wreckage around 7 p.m. Friday morning.

School Based Decision Making adopted in Rockcastle County

All of the Rockcastle County Schools have now voted to implement School Based Decision Making, according to the Rockcastle County School Board. At Tuesday night's meeting, the board learned that Livingston Elementary School, the last of the county schools to accept SBDM, voted unanimously in favor of the program which will take effect in July.

Land surveys and core drills are among the tasks at the site of the new high school to be completed in the upcoming month according to the board.

The site tentatively chosen for the new high school has to undergo certain tests and procedures before state approval of the land can be obtained. "Between now and the next meeting, we will pursue approval of all documents on the site for final approval," said Richard Bray, assistant to the superintendent.

According to Bray, the state requires such information as a fee simple title, a report from a registered surveyor, a letter from an engineer providing assurance of adequate utilities, a letter from the state highway district engineer stating road adequacy, property assessments, acquisition costs and a report on any potential safety hazards from the architect or engineer.

Bray continued by stating that in his opinion, following the approval of the site, the board should pursue annexation of the property into the city limits. Chairman George M. Poynter added that annexation, among other advantages, would provide the school with police protection. The property is bordered on all sides with land that is already annexed.

Dawn Lang, Betty Lewis, coordinators, and Saticia Morgan, social worker, from the Family Resource Center/Youth Services Center addressed the board at Tuesday's meeting with a profile on the progress and duties of the center. Lang and Lewis explained the importance of the center as it serves all Rockcastle County

Crab Orchard mayor resigns after City Clerk is fired

Crab Orchard Mayor Marjorie Bunch quit Tuesday, the day after leaving city commission meeting at which the city clerk was fired.

Their departure left the remaining city officials scrambling to find a replacement to reopen City Hall, which was closed on Tuesday. The city commission hoped to find a temporary replacement for Shirley Harris, the fired city clerk, to begin working Thursday.

Mrs. Bunch, who was in her 11th year as mayor, said her resignation was to enable her to have more time for her family and herself. She said after the meeting that she and her husband, who is retired, have been trying to plan a lengthy vacation before starting to build a new house but she was tied down by her duties at City Hall.

"It's gotten so it's just a little bit much," she said.

Despite her reference to wanting more time with her family, no one believed that her departure was completely divorced from the events of the previous evening.

Commissioner David Newcomb, who led the charge to fire Harris on Monday, tried to talk Bunch out of leaving.

"I believe we can work together," he told the mayor after she announced her intention to resign. "I know we've had problems."

Bunch refused to reconsider, saying she was acting on the advice of her attorney.

The four commissioners unanimously accepted her resignation.

After that vote, Newcomb, who serves as Mayor Pro Tem as the largest vote getter in the last commissioner's election, took over the reigns of a floundering City Hall.

The departure of Harris and Bunch left no one to run City Hall on a day-to-day basis at a time when the bulk of the monthly revenue from the city's largest enterprise, its water and sewer department, was due to come in.

Water bills were due on Tuesday, when City Hall was closed.

The commissioners agreed that residents who were prevented from paying their bills because the office was closed would not be charged a penalty.

The commissioners also agreed to a suggestion from resident Lonnie Gaither to contact Lucille Hammons, Harris' predecessor as city clerk, and ask her to take the job back temporarily until a new clerk is hired.

If Mrs. Hammons declines, Commissioner Phillip Shelton said that one of the city commissioners would have to come in and reopen City Hall on Thursday.

The crisis at City Hall stems from a vote last month by the commission to resume the practice of opening the office from 9 a.m. until noon on Saturday and to close the office all day on Wednesday.

The commissioners said they wanted to give people who work out of town a chance to transact business when they are home on weekends.

The change in operating hours did not take place, however. Harris said she thought she was being discriminated against because the male employees of the city continued to work all day on Wednesdays and get their weekends off.

With the blessing of the mayor - perhaps at her suggestion - Harris did not change her hours.

When questioned at Monday's commission meeting about her failure to follow the instructions of the commissioners, Harris said she didn't think it fair to make her give up her weekends when no other city employees had to. She also said that if she began taking Wednesdays off, no one would be there to answer the telephone and take messages for the water and sewer department employee who were working.

Newcomb pointed out that the other city employees are on call 24 hours a day and often work weekends.

Newcomb made a motion to "immediately and permanently" dismiss Harris for insubordination.

Shelton said he doesn't believe that the commission can hire and fire anyone.

"If the mayor told her not to come in (on Saturday), you can't fire her," Shelton said. "But you can impeach the mayor."

Commissioner Danny Neely, prefacing his remarks with words of praise for Harris, said that he believes that once the council votes on something, it is up to the city employees to follow those orders.

"If this board doesn't have the right to pass motions and see it through, we've got no purpose here," Neely said.

In the voting, Shelton voted against firing Harris with Newcomb, Neely and Eddie Smith voting to dismiss.

Harris immediately began gathering her belongings and walked out of the commissioner's meeting, followed by her husband Millard, who leaned down to a reporter on his way out and said "This is exactly what she wanted."

Discussion then turned to who would open City Hall on Tuesday. Newcomb suggested that Bunch fill in as clerk because she has drawn pay from the city as an assistant clerk.

Local weather

It was a short spring followed by a little snow.

That was the scene around Rockcastle Wednesday when everyone awoke to a half-inch of snow, according to statistics at Cox Funeral Home in Mt. Vernon.

The ice and snow, locally, didn't offer much of a problem to motorists, main arteries were salted.

It was 33 degrees colder between Tuesday morning and Wednesday when temperatures dropped from 55 to 18, or 33 degrees.

A cold front brought an end to the warm breezes from the south and may have affected some plants. The wind chill factor was 8 below zero earlier Wednesday.

To date this month 2.23 inches of rain/snow has fallen, most of it rain.

As old benediction asks for us, "May you live in interesting times."

Times of change such as we are experiencing today may seem curses rather than benedictions. The whole world is having some tough economic sledding. The traditional super-powers have lost their superior edge. The traditional "have not" Third World nations still have not overtaken Germany and Japan, new economic powers, are not as stable as they appear. West Germany is struggling with difficulty through reunification to absorb the poverty and unemployment of East Germany. Japan's economic power depends upon the willingness of Japanese workers to work for pitifully low wages.

The worldwide sunshine of democracy that has burst forth is dampened where by torments of worldwide economic stress.

Part of the challenge of chaos is to make order from it; part of the magic of limited options is to transform them into opportunities.

Anyone who has studied the stone fences of Kentucky Bluegrass farms will know instantly what I mean. One has to appreciate the imagination and patience of craftsmen who take scattered stone from fields and make useful but singular art from them even as they leave the rocky fields cleared for farming. In those fences, everything seems to come together and to fit perfectly.

Our grandmother cooked on a gas range. She would save in a glass jar the wooden matchsticks she used to light the eyes or oven. When we would visit, she would give us the jar and we would entertain ourselves with the matchsticks for hours stacking them to make castles, lining them up like troops and making fences.

The wonderful thing about old-time toys such as Clabber Girl cans full of odd buttons, an orange bag full of building blocks, or a box of crayons was that they had no rules with which to play. The only limit to their possibilities was the creativity of the child playing with them.

Marvelous somethings are made out of virtual nothings. A caterpillar changes into a beautiful butterfly, a child changes into a parent, red ink changes to black, bad changes into good. Creativity and self-will, in tune with or reacting against the times and environment, shape the future.

"Metamorphosis" is what good teaching, good parenting, good corporate executiveship, and a whole good society are all about. Metamorphosis in the best sense means "coming out and going up."

Our world is in the active stage of a new metamorphosis.

In the perplexing but "interesting" times of global economic and political change in which we live, a long-submerged instinct for human kindness is surfacing.

A gene concern of people for others is apparent to any of us with eyes to see and ears to hear. This conclusion can be reached by any of us. It is more than just a need or a hope; it is a fact.

You can extrapolate your own conclusion that conscience and caring are being reborn.

Go to almost any college campus or high school and talk with students there about what they are doing to make life a bit better. They are tutoring illiterate inner city children and adults; they are working on Habitat for Humanity houses; they are coaching neighborhood athletic teams; they are fasting and giving their funds to by state religion, royalty, class distinction, banks or governments but by people participating willingly in helping one another. He saw them building homes for each other, creating schools, building libraries, sharing their dinners and suffering themselves whenever others around them suffered.

There is a revolution of gigantic proportion going on in the world, but it is unlike any revolution the world has known in the Age of Revolutions that has included our own in 1776, Russia's in 1917, China's in 1949 and hundreds more all over the globe.

This revolution is not ideological. It recognizes neither political parties nor liberal or conservative labels, because it has wearied of waiting upon them to treat the basic symptoms of human need.

From the damp darkness of a cocoon of disorder and change, the light and warmth of the human spirit are signs of awakening and beauty.

Treasure the color and grace of such a metamorphosis. It does not often come our way. And, with the third millennium immediately upon us, appreciate the symbolism of its good timing.

Parents generally contribute to their children's inclination to take drugs. If that sounds like a radical statement, consider the following familiar scenarios. Little Johnny is bored and irritable and engaged in aggravating his mom. Mom gives him a cookie or a lollipop and he calms down. Earlier in life, mom discovered that wonderful contraption appropriately called a "pacifier" . . . it was a natural transition from pacifier to candy.

Jenny's tummy hurts. Mark has a mild runny nose or sore throat, Suzie has some normal menstrual discomfort or a slight headache, or muscle strain. Aided by the parade of advertisements that cross the television screen each hour, mom or dad finds the best pill or spray or ointment on the bathroom shelf to "fix" the discomfort. Protective Parenting taught that tolerating discomfort or aggravation is unthinkable, that one must instantly find a way to feel better. Is it a wonder then that children accept the "feel better" attraction of a Budweiser so readily?

An alternative to the above is to reassure the child that it is normal to feel bad sometimes and encourage him to wait and see if a little water or rest will solve the problem. Physical and emotional hurts generally heal themselves, given time, and valuable lessons are learned in this natural process. A few minutes playing a game with the child, or even a few cheerful words or hugs can be more gratifying or pacifying than something popped in the mouth. Creative solution of problems can be learned.

Caffeine is a drug. It is in pop. While it is a mild drug, it does affect a child's ability to concentrate. Actually, in certain hyperactivity disorders, caffeine is sometimes prescribed, because it paradoxically calms down some children. Nevertheless, a healthy child who is healthily drinking milk, or juice, or water. When a child seems to crave pop, it is a sign that he may be addicted to the caffeine in it. Withdrawal from this addiction is relatively easy, usually the only side effect is a mild headache and even this discomfort can be avoided by a gradual weaning process. A little pop in a glass of juice gives the sparkle kids like. There is absolutely no food value but calories in a can of pop and it also contains sugar, other sweeteners, and food coloring, all of which have been found to affect some children's behavior adversely. Is it possible that when pop is perceived as a common childhood drink, that gratulation to something stronger might be considered "adult"? Pop should be a treat, not a staple in a child's diet.

In the typical kindergarten to second grade classroom in Rockcastle County, between two and six little boys claim to be regular smokers of chewing tobacco. That is maybe 15 percent of our little children who have been introduced to an overtly poisonous drug, and the most addictive drug (equal to heroin and cocaine in addictiveness) by their loving fathers. Besides the addictive nicotine and hazardous tars, tobacco smoke contains cyanide, arsenic, carbon monoxide and formaldehyde. It is hard to justify a responsible adult giving these poisons to an innocent child. Once hooked on nicotine in any form, progression to other addictive drugs is far more likely to occur. Death from tobacco smoking far exceeds death by AIDS, car and airplane accidents, fire, murder and suicide combined, but far more parents fear these things for their child. Just because the hazards of smoking are far slower and more subtle is no excuse to be fooled into ignoring the statistics.

The war on drugs begins at home. Some long-standing lifestyles and habits in our homes and schools may need to be examined and changed, and this is difficult. But if we expect our children not to try to solve their problems and achieve pleasure the easy way, then we as parents must not practice easy shortcuts in raising them. Oral gratification in the form of effective verbal communication with your child is far more valid than feeding in to a lifelong quest for oral gratification through substances.

Caldwell.

Roamin' Rockcastle

BY HILDA PAYNE GABBARD

With sassaras root sap coming up in the trees, and tea and coffee made of it, this winter's sluggish blood along with eating wild greens, folks are busy in the hills doing themselves to get in shape for work in an early garden.

Hilda, I really like your writing in the paper. I read you every week, a friendly woman you take me as I was getting into my car in the Wal-Mart parking lot.

"Well, thank you," I answered. "I'm sorry but I don't know you."
"I live at Big Hill and I'm Hezzie Shearer's daughter, Kathleen. He went to Davis Branch School when you did," the woman told me. A flood of memories went over me as I heard her talk.

"I've just learned that the comic strip 'Small Dog' on the sports page of the Citizen is the 'brain child' of Michael and J.D. Spartzman making their mom, Mary Spartzman, teller at Herod National Bank (and I'm sure Dadlog) very proud of them and she has a right to be. Not many young fellows get started this early on a good paying (later) job.

Henry Voltmer, a good reader and an old friend from Indiana sends me a beautiful musical birthday card. The joke's on me, Henry, I started opening the envelope and heard faint music. Not thinking about the card, I said to myself "I've left the radio on in the bedroom. I went to turn it off but no music from that room.

When I picked up the card again, I heard the music and knew what had happened. Many thanks, Henry for the surprise.

In the mail also was a card that came all the way from North Carolina that had a greeting saying "For Someone Special" which made me very happy but John said, "Watch out for you can't get your cap on" at I want to thank Marilyn Scott for two reasons. Not only being a good reader of this paper but of my column as well.

Marilyn wants to know just when my birthday comes, in January or February.

Well, the midwife delivered me on January 26th but Earl Hammond and Edd Croucher, next door neighbors to each other, laugh themselves to death when I mention the year.

Now, Marilyn, if I tell you her name, she and Earl may hurry and eat up all the preserved turnips she made last fall, not to mention the pickled plumgranites and shuck (dried) beans hanging on the kitchen wall. It may be better to just slip in one day.

Brenda Powell from Paint Lick, (whose husband looks like a movie star), and who used to work at the Citizen office and type my column, stopped by to see me one day at home recently. She brought me a delicious piece of cake that she had baked.

Here, I've been thinking that her husband had married her because Brenda is so pretty. Now I know it's because of her cooking!

I have told you what good neighbors we have on Menava Road, and Arthur Davidson, our neighbor, provided that when he came roaring down on a big tractor and plowed John's garden. (I only claim part when things are ready to eat).

I guess I'm not the only one trying to improve my body. As Body Recall Exercise Class went into the college gym, I met Inez Cass McKinney coming out with an earlier group. She's from Broadhead but lives in Berea.

It was beautiful and peaceful five miles back in the hills from Livingston when we drove around a deep curve on the winding mountain road and saw the red brick building with the name Pleasant Run Baptist Church over the door.

The church sets in a small green valley where the hills behind it come down to within a short distance of the building.

We had come to see and hear Brother Bill Hammond. He had been our pastor at Galilee Baptist Church in the past.
John parked the car and we started walking forward. Then Brother Bill stepped out of a group of men standing in front of the church. He seemed so surprised to see us. He and John hugged each other for John loves this man. He made us both feel welcome. Sunday School broke then so we all went into the church and I admired the nice, modern building.
Brother Bill preached a good sermon as he always does. After church, I hoped I could get some names to put in this column. To my surprise, they came to me, some of the nicest, friendly folks saying they had read me in the Signal and knew me by my picture.

Some of those I talked with were, Mae Carter, Brenda Parkes, Ruth Cummins, Ruby Mahaffey, Denise Carpenter and Rita Mize.

Another lady said they were having some visitors to the church and gave them their names. Jean Evard from Thanks to all of you who have encouraged me to get back in the harness and try once again to bring back a few memories of the past as well as a few of my own philosophies. I'll try.

Last week's birthday greeting to Birch, my grandson, was followed by Polly, Chuck and I going to Institute, W.Va. to hear the competition play off of the state high school jazz bands. Of course we were thrilled to see the band plays for, East Greenbrier High, take first place and even more thrilled when Birch won the trophy for his saxophone solos. Congratulations Birch.

Our trip to W. Va. was worth all the effort even if it had not been for that important event. "Springtime in Appalachia." There should be a song written about it. The melody is in the spring freshets flowing from the mountainsides and coming from every bush and tree with birds trilling out their spring songs of love. Even the highways buzz with pleasant sounds as the tires make contact with the damp surface of the endless miles of roads like ribbon winding their way in and out of the hills.

The scenery on the north eastern route 64, leading into W. Va. is very different to that on Rt. 80, or The Boonewy which enters W. Va. to the south. The south has tall mountains and deep hollows and mountains sides striped by the coal that have many times been left bare and raw. That route is very impressive with its wild beauty and contrasts of hollows and mountains.

Route 64 on the other hand has more valleys and hills ranging from small knolls to what could be classed as baby mountains. The closer one gets to W. Va. the taller the hills get and the closer together they are. Soon Kettering, Ohio, Barbara Elain from Winchester, Sue Scott from Lexington. The lady was Sandra Taylor. I'm hoping I got all this right.

After church we stood outside and talked to Brother Bill and some others.

Across the road, I saw what looked like an old schoolhouse. Someone said it had been.

The post office near by had the name Lamerco on it and I was told Pleasant Run was only a few miles from the Laurel County line.

Brother Bill invited us back to a singing the church was having near the end of this month. They were expecting some groups of good singers to be there.

For help with arthritis, grind ginger, the wonder herb, into powder. Make a tea and drink. Helps prevent vertigo, blood clots.

Till next week. Don't read next week for all my news but read next week why Glen Croemer won't be picked up more cans to help wife Sue.

you are in the mountains of W. Va. and the scenes closely match those in southeast Ky. I did say almost that, there never is any exact scenes anywhere, just as there are no two faces alike nor any two flowers alike. Scenery is something that can be enjoyed by everyone for each can see what he wants to from any angle he or she happens to be viewing from.

Anyway, as we left the old beaten path of I-75 and picked up Rt. 64 in Winchester we were in for a little different viewing. It was pretty early, a little after seven so there wasn't much traffic. I guess that was the first thing we noticed, open roads and no one crowding to get past. Then the actual scenery began to sink in. The gentle slopes and broad fields between them. When a stream of water was visible it was gurgling over the rocks exposed for most of these streams are shallow. I remember some of them from my childhood. You see, I was traveling through the part of country that my forefathers settled. I thought that is why I saw more, or though maybe I was seeing more than Polly and Chuck were. I was reading between the lines, as one might say. I think I was trying to see over the next hill and peep into a little cabin on the hillside and see if I could find more making mush or frying dried fish in the kitchen. Or see if I could hear the latest baby crying in his improvised crib which was a great big old rocking chair used almost exclusively for this purpose. Turn backward, turn backward, Oh time in your flight, and make me a big, again, just for tonight). How very often this old verse comes to mind when I am reminiscing, and this trip to witness my grandson win his honors that he had worked for was certainly causing me a lot of reminisc-ing. Here was where my roots were established. Almost every little graveyard in the area could attest to it. The names of my forefathers could undoubtedly be found on many of the old stones scattered throughout them. The hills and hollows here-about had at one time rang out with their laughter and songs as well as their wails of sorrow when their loved ones were put in their final resting place. The Indians had roamed these valleys and left their offspring to mingle with the whites the same as they did in other areas. That is where my Indian blood came from. One of the noble Shawnee or hard working Cherokee seemingly would and w a maiden who later turned out to be my ancestor. I am equally proud of each of them. I wish more people with this combination of blood would acknowledge it and hold high the flag of the native American.

Maybe it was wishful thinking but it seemed that just the few short hours we were in W. Va. were long enough to change things, there seemed to be more leaves popping out than all the flowering shrubs were vying with each other to see which could show the most blooms in the shortest time. Maybe it was the clap of thunder from the thunder storm we witnessed while we were waiting for the performance to start that also opened up the buds and sent the flowers out to see what was going on.
Anyway, my first trip of the season has been a success. I enjoyed it from start to finish. This summer I would like to promote, "See Kentucky first" then practice it myself. Of course I have seen most of Kentucky but I'm sure there are many places I haven't seen or would enjoy seeing again. If anyone else is interested call me and maybe several of us can see our home state.

"What Saith the Scriptures"

In Ps. 14:1, we read "The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God." Paul in Rm. 1:21-22 said, "Because that, when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful; but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened, professing themselves to be wise, they became fools." We live in a world where a lot of people have rejected the knowledge of the true God. The Psalmist said such people, who say that there is no God is a fool...jects the concept of God as creator, Paul points out, is that they become vain in their imaginations. They may profess themselves to be wise, but really they are fools.

Many in our society believe in evolution and reject God. We see evidence. These folks may have college degrees but really are fools, i.e. willfully ignorant (not one who is mentally retarded). We see evidence of the influence of these people on every hand. Animal rights activists think it's terrible to cage or pen up animals. God gave man the right to exercise dominion over animals and creation, and to subdue the earth. Gen. 1:26-28.

I've seen where people have complained that Dolphins that are held captive in certain places for humans to swim and ride on their backs, is terrible. I guess riding on a horse or camel would also be bad in these folks' eyes. I saw in Time magazine where some people were protesting the wearing of animal fur, in fact, they called it "obscene." There's nothing wrong with wearing coats made of animal skins, even God clothed Adam and Eve with such. Gen. 2:31. Out west, thousands of acres of forest lands are being kept from being cut for lumber, because of a certain spotted owl. Man is not to be under the dominion and control of animals but vice-versa. I saw on the news one time where people who took tourists out on the Gulf of Mexico to feed Dolphins had to quit. Some "scientists" decided this was bad for Dolphins. People who believe in God and the scriptures will not be deceived by the "educated fools" who reject the knowledge of God. Let us know if we can study the word of God with you.

Teen Center Perspectives

The atmosphere at the Rockcastle Teen Center is living up for a number of reasons. First of all, the newly painted walls that were done by the teens and staff of Rockcastle Teen Center add a certain brightness to the place. And, of course, spring is right around the corner which causes a cheerful attitude in everyone here. Also, we are doing a variety of exciting activities at the teen center. For one example, this Saturday, March 14, the teens and staff of Rockcastle Teen Center will be going to Lexington Ice Center with Garrard Teen Center. We will be leaving the teen center at 12:30 p.m. and arriving back around 5:30 p.m. All permission slips must be in by Friday night and the cost is $3. Permission slips for any field trip we go on must be turned in to the staff at the teen center the day before the actual trip and must be signed by a parent or guardian. There is a new program that has started up for the teens called "Crossroads." This new program discusses Christianity and morality in the hopes of dispelling the myths and perpetuating the reality of each. Parents are welcomed to join us as well. "Crossroads" is every Monday night at 6:30 p.m.

Schedule
Monday: Crossroads - 6:30 p.m.
Tuesday: Karate/Human Sexuality - 5:30, AA Alcohol C.O.A. - 7:30 p.m.

Meet Destination Graduation tutors

Care, positive self-esteem, and success are a winning combination that's hard to beat. EKU students who are natives of Rockcastle County are providing this special combination through tutorial assistance to ninth and tenth graders at Rockcastle County High School this year through EKU's Destination Graduation tutoring program.

Funded federally through the Kentucky Council on Higher Education, the Destination Graduation program at Eastern Kentucky University is in partnership with the Rockcastle County School System to provide tutorial assistance to at-risk ninth and tenth grade students building academic skills in math, language arts, and study skills.

Destination Graduation recruits EKU students who are natives of Rockcastle County to work as paid tutors in their native county. The tutors also serve as role models to the students whom they tutor, as examples of county natives who have graduated from high school and are successfully attending college.

Rockcastle County Superintendent, Mr. Bige Towery, Jr., says, "All too often students from rural Kentucky schools—especially rural Kentucky schools in the Fifth Congressional District—hear only negative things about the region's education level and the educational opportunities there. It really makes a difference when our students see former Rockcastle County High School students going to a university and succeeding. It says to them, 'Yes, I can do this, too!'"

Research indicates that potential dropouts benefit from programs in which there is a great deal of personal contact and interaction, and opportunities for success. James Cox, assistant principal of Rockcastle County High School, says, "The personal interaction and building of positive self-esteem are major points of the Destination Graduation program."

Eastern Kentucky University's Rockcastle County tutors for the 1991-1992 academic year are:

Destination Graduation was first envisioned by Forward In The Fifth's Higher Education Consortium. Since 1988, some 1,500 ninth and tenth graders are tutored each year by 230 college students from the twelve public and private colleges and universities participating in Destination Graduation. Forty-five local school districts are partners in the Destination graduation program.

In August, Destination Graduation received funding for an additional three years, 1991 - 1994. Only 14 programs out of the 186 applying received federal funding. Destination Graduation at EKU provides special activities and events throughout the academic school year for students participating in the Rockcastle County-Destination Graduation tutoring program. Special events and activities conducted by EKU's Destination Graduation include: a career day program conducted at EKU; achievement recognition programs conducted at the high school; celebrity guest speakers; pizza parties; and a Saturday visit to EKU for athletic events and the EKU Hummel Planetarium Star Show.

Destination Graduation at EKU also coordinates the summer school enrichment activities for the Rockcastle County summer school program for at-risk students. Planning for the summer school enrichment activities is done jointly with the Rockcastle County School System and is begun early in the academic year.

During the summer school program, students, teachers, and Destination Graduation tutors are bused each Friday to EKU's campus for enrichment activities and computer workshops. On alternate Fridays, enrichment trips include jaunts to such locales as Fort Boonesboro; Shaker-town; EKU's Hummel Planetarium; Channel 27; Kentucky Horse Park; and White Hall State Shrine to name a few. EKU's Destination Graduation tutors assist teachers daily in the summer school in a wide variety of capacities and accompany the classes on enrichment day trips. The EKU Destination Graduation tutors are a vital part of the summer school program.

Forward in the Fifth sponsors KERA caravan for Rockcastle and Laurel

Are you still wondering just what an ungraded primary classroom is? Are you puzzled about the difference between performance-based testing and the test you took in school? Are you trying to figure out just what a family resource center is? Are you curious about how six people, instead of one, are going to run a school?

If so, come and join the Forward in the Fifth KERA Karavan and learn more about Kentucky's education reform process.

Forward in the Fifth, in conjunction with Rockcastle County Forward in the Fifth, and the Laurel County Educational Forum, is sponsoring the KERA Karavan on Thursday, March 19, at 7 p.m. at Rockcastle County High School.

This panel meeting is designed to inform parents, citizens and school personnel about Kentucky's Education Reform Law (KERA). Panelists will include: Cindy Heine, Associate Executive Director of the Prichard Committee; Bob Arvin, Deputy Commissioner of Management Support Services to Schools, State Department of Education; Hal Fink, Family Resource Analyst, State Department of Human Resources; David Keller, Executive Director of the Kentucky School Boards Association; Ellen Nicholson, ungraded primary teacher, Camp Ground Elementary, Laurel County; and Charles Carter, teacher at Mt. Vernon Elementary; and site-based council member of the Forward in the Fifth Executive Committee will moderate the panel.

The speakers will address the following topics: ungraded primary, site-based decision making, family resource centers, the role of school boards and performance-based assessment. After the presentation, the meeting will be opened to the audience for questions.

Prizes will be awarded to a teacher from each school system who has the most parents there. The general audience will also be eligible for door prizes and the first 50 people to arrive will receive a free T-shirt.

For more information, please call 606-986-3696.

Bunch said that she was never given specific duties as an assistant, deputy or any other type of clerk and let the commissioners know that she would not be opening the office. The mayor then left the meeting, only to return minutes later and tear up her last paycheck from the city and deposit the tiny pieces of the $134.38 check on Newcomb's desk.

Millard Harris, a former city commissioner who was beaten in last fall's election, returned to the meeting with his wife's keys, which also were deposited on Newcomb's desk. "Don't be too big a smart ass," Newcomb told Harris as he turned to leave.

Harris turned back around and said, "Don't start any _____ with me."

The two glared at each other for a moment and Harris said there were too many people there.

"I'll be around," Newcomb called out as Harris left the room. "Not for long," Harris answered as he walked down the hallway.

The commissioners agreed to pass his bills that had come in over the last month and adjourned the meeting.

Lady Rockets lose, 67-49, to Jackson County in first round

Any hopes of a Rockcastle basketball team making it to the regional tournament were dashed last Wednesday night as the Rockcastle County Lady Rockets fell to the Jackson County Lady Generals, 67-49, in the first round of the 49th District tournament.

"I think our girls were just scared to death," head coach Chrysti Beaver said, "so scared they just weren't able to come out and play the game they are capable of playing."

Cindy McCauley and Jennifer Thacker teamed up to score 41 of the Lady Rocket's 49 total points. McCauley with 27 and Thacker with 14.

Thacker and McCauley scored 34 of the first three quarter's 36 points. Kristy Sargent tossed in the other two points midway through the third.

McCauley also had a big night on the boards pulling down 17.

The Lady Rockets played even with the Lady Generals in the first quarter as they were down by only one, 12-11.

But the Lady Generals came back out on the floor hot. They scored five unanswered points forcing the Lady Rockets to call a time-out only 41 seconds into the second quarter.

Jackson forced the Lady Rockets' hand even more by extending their lead to as many as 18 in the second quarter forcing the Lady Rockets to call yet another time-out with 3:22 left in the first half.

The Lady Generals went on to outscore the Rockets a big 23-9 to take a 15 point lead at the half, 35-20.

After standing most of the first half on defense, the Rockets came out in the third quarter picking up the tempo and forcing turnovers, managing to outscore Jackson, 14-11, to cut into the General's lead.

But Jackson County came back hot in the final period outscoring the Lady Rockets, 21-15, for the final score of 67-49.

Besides McCauley and Thacker, other Lady Rockets scoring were: Beth Amyx, 3; Daneta Ford, 3; Kristi Sargent, 2.

The Lady Rockets ended their season with an impressive 16-11 record.

Grace defeats Ottawa, 95-65; win tourney

By: Margaret Offutt

Grace Baptist I captured the Rockcastle Church Basketball League tournament with a 95-65 win over Ottawa Baptist I this past Monday night at Mt. Vernon Elementary. The win marked the second straight year that Grace has won the tourney and league.

Although Ottawa was tasked with taking on Grace, the game was close through the first quarter with only a three point margin in Grace's favor, 24-21. However, Grace managed to pull away in the second quarter and, from there, never looked back.

Grace once again had a well balanced scoring attack with all starters scoring in double figures. Scott Parrett, who led all scorers, poured in 26 points. Others paving the way were Danny Offutt with 17, Dale Robinson with 15, Jessie Mahaffey with 14 and Dwayne McKinney with 13. Grace also had excellent play from the bench with Tony Mahaffey with six points and Shannon Burton with five.

Ottawa was led by Jeff Laswell and Mark Bishop, each with 18. Dennis Harris also put in 15 while Mike Jones continued to play well by adding 11.

In action leading up to the finals, Scaffold Cane played Ottawa Baptist I in the first game of the night with Ottawa coming out victorious, 51-44.

Although the score was tied at intermission at 27, Ottawa pumped in 13 in the fourth quarter, compared to Scaffold Cane's four, to extend their lead and take the win.

Ottawa was led by Jeff Laswell with 13 points and Dennis Harris with 12.

Leading Scaffold Cane were Kenny Graves with 20 and Billy Todd with 10.

The second game of the night matched Grace Baptist I against Bible Baptist. With the game close all the way, Grace managed to edge out Bible in the final minutes, 57-53.

Scott Parrett had an outstanding game for Grace scoring 22 points while Dwayne McKinney added 10. Bible was led in scoring by David Bryant's 18 points and Darrin Allen's 13.

With the loss, Bible dropped to the loser's bracket to face Ottawa Baptist I in the third game of the night. Although Ottawa played well and had a seven point lead in the first quarter, it took clutch free throws in the closing seconds by Mike Jones to give Ottawa the win, 56-54.

Leading Ottawa were Dennis Harris with 14 and Jeff Laswell with 12.

Bible was led by Darrin Allen with 14 points and Devin Ford with 12.

A special thanks is extended to all the teams that participated, the referees from Madison County, Ken Riley and Dean Ratliff and to Bro. Raymond Offutt for all the time and effort he put forth to have a successful league.

Tracking the Cats

By Jim Master

In the past, it has been the opinion of this corner that the Southeastern Conference Tournament, like most postseason parties before the real show, was a testimonial to money on behalf of the member institution. I was wrong.

The SEC Tournament, like its counterparts in the Big East and the Atlantic Coast Conference, are a great warmup to the NCAA Championships. And there is one primary reason.

The neutral court. For the first and only time all season long, we can see who really is the best team in the league. Of course, upsets can happen, but instead of officials being intimidated by a hostile home court, the neutral court theory prevails here.

Of course, this year's tournament is in Birmingham (Alabama and Auburn), while next year it will be in

The Rockcastle County Merchants would like to thank Mt. Vernon Convenient and Mt. Vernon Plastics for sponsoring their team for the past 1991 season. The Merchants had a very successful season finishing with a 70-27 record. The Merchants were the winners of the league and tournament at Wheeler Park in Pulaski County. They also placed in eighteen tournaments with six 1st place finishes, seven 2nd place finishes, three 3rd place finishes and one 4th place finish. They finished 5th in the A.S.A. Class A & B Fall State Tournament and tied for 6th place in the Casey County Apple Festival. Members of the team are, front from left: Dwayne McKinney, Daryl Denny, Danny Offutt, Bruce Blanton and David Burdine. Second row, from left, are: Bruce Stringer and Steve Phelps. Third row, from left, are: Jesse Mahaffey, Spencer Benge, Jeff Bullock, Bobby Dale Robinson and Mark Bishop. Back row, from left, are: Scott Parrett and Tim Coats.

Irene Gruter, #25 and Cindy McCauley, #33, double-team Jackson County player during district tournament action.

Rupp Arena. Still, each school receives a number of tickets and this helps offset a majority crowd in favor of one team.

The main reason that the next 3-4 weeks are the best that sports has to offer is the neutral playing site. Unlike baseball and the NBA, where it is strictly a home and home arrangement or the NFL, with home teams until the Super Bowl, the NCAA Tournament takes the home field (court) advantage away and makes a team earn it.

The neutrality of the tournament is great, but the argument prevails: Why should divisional champions like Arkansas and Kentucky especially and then LSU and Alabama, don't have as much to play for. The rest of the league is playing for that bid, for that run to glory that ends in cutting down the nets in Birmingham and going on to the big show that ends in Minneapolis. Even Rick Pitino admitted that Kentucky would approach this tournament differently, with their focus aimed at the NCAAs.

Still, it's difficult for a team to turn its emotions on and off like a faucet during this stage of the season. Alabama, a real force in this SEC tournament in years past, will be playing for a higher steeled in the tournament, as will LSU. Kentucky and Arkansas, if they win at least one game, will probably be a second or third seed. Still, that is motivation enough. And then there is the factor that Kentucky has not played in the SEC tourney since 1989, when it was bounced in the first round by C.M. Newton's Vanderbilt Commodores. These seniors have tasted bitterness with the SEC tourney and they could be looking for pay-back time.

The divisions in the SEC are not the best deciding who is the superior team, since Kentucky plays LSU, Arkansas and Alabama only once. That is another reason I like this tournament.

Who will win? Hard to say, but the nod here favors Arkansas, Alabama, Kentucky or LSU should come out of one bracket, and as the Tigers learn how to play as a team more and more with O'Neal, they are very dangerous. Alabama has the history of performing well in this tournament and being in Birmingham helps as well.

Regardless, on Sunday when the NCAA field is announced, for the first time in four years, Kentucky will be included. And that is reason enough to celebrate.

Congratulations are in order to Jamal Mashburn, who was named to the SEC coaches all conference team. Eleven players were named and Mashburn is obviously a top five player. Four players were unanimous picks - Lee Mayberry and Todd Day of Arkansas, O'Neal of LSU and Allan Houston of Tennessee. Mashburn deserved the fifth.

Beth Amyx goes for a steal against Jackson County in tournament action last week.

Jennifer Thacker goes for two of her 17 points against Jackson County.

Kristy Sargent goes for two in the Lady Rockets 67-49 loss to Hickory County.

Don't take boat towing too lightly

Strange as it may seem, too many boaters spend thousands of dollars on a good boat and then neglect the equipment and techniques basic for proper towing. This neglect can cause major headaches and accidents. And in most cases, every problem could have been prevented.

The boating experts at Starcraft Boats offer the following trailer towing advice.

Maybe a short refresher course in towing procedure will save you some of those headaches and stave off the accidents we all want to avoid.

First of all, always choose the right trailer. The key word is proper fit. Most trailers do adjust. But this doesn't mean they'll adjust enough to match up correctly with the boat you have chosen.

Too many boaters point to a 20-foot boat resting on a trailer made for smaller boats and brag about how they've adjusted the fit. But in most cases they've overlooked another key word: balance. If the majority of the boat's weight is resting on the hitch rather than over the wheels, then they've got a rig out of balance. And problems awaiting on down the road.

It just makes common sense to let a reputable dealer show you how to make proper adjustments at the time of purchase. Many boaters don't realize that balance problems can arise even when you place a small boat on a large trailer.

Some trailers come equipped with a spare tire, and some do not. Would you drive your car without a spare? Of course not. Yet far too many boaters head down the highway without a trailer spare. A spare rim and tire can be purchased for approximately $100, a cheap price to pay when you're hundreds of miles from home and forced to a standstill by the most nagging headache of all, a flat tire.

Trailer maintenance only takes a few minutes. Always make sure your hubs are packed with grease. Check them every trip! Losing a wheel on the road can damage your boat, and turn a long awaited boating venture into a nightmare.

And while we're on the subject of maintenance, remember to check your trailer lights often. The constant dunking they receive often leads to malfunction. Bad lights can result in a ticket. Or you could cause a serious accident. So please be safe, and spend a few minutes making sure your trailer is in tip-top shape. It's the best way we've found to keep those trip-spoiling headaches to a minimum.

And the folks at Starcraft Boats want to add one other thing: along the highway, in camp or on the water, please don't litter. Keep your trash to yourself, and then dispose of it properly. Boating slobbers are out of style. So be somebody, and help us keep America clean.

The CTBS Achievement Test will be given March 23-27. We will be doing a lot of practicing to get ready for this test. The practice sheets will cover the same skills we discuss in class. The difference will be the way the students mark their answer. It really does take practice to fill in a 5 or 6 grade old student to fill in a little circle to answer a question!

Please check with your child to see if he/she has crayons, a pencil, and glue at school. Most of the students are out of glue. Remember to put your child's name on these items.

Library News
Mrs. Vickie Arnold attended the Kentucky Educational Technology conference at the Galt House in Louisville on March 2-3.

At the conference Mrs. Arnold learned about many types of technology available for schools and libraries. A highlight of the conference was getting to see a video about Northern Elementary in Scott County. This school has been built for two years. The school and library are high tech. The library AV department was computerized.

Mrs. Arnold was very impressed with CD ROM Players. LES would benefit from having a set of encyclopedias on CD ROM. At the conference Mrs. Arnold also got to attend a session about Greenwood High School in Bowling Green. The librarian of the school gave a presentation about Circulation Plus and Card Catalog on computer.

To the Citizens of Rockcastle County

Congratulations! Your fellow Kentuckians admire the pace Rockcastle County is setting for the entire state in improving schools.

Rockcastle students, teachers, parents and business leaders are proving that schools in smaller, rural communities can be among the best in leading the state.

Especially want to applaud Rockcastle students, teachers, parents and business leaders who are proving that schools in smaller, rural communities can be among the best in leading the state.

To the teachers who are winning state and national recognition, and to the parents and business leaders who offer support, I also pay special tribute. Without your dedication, there would be no success.

As a result of the partnership between school and home, grades are soaring. More importantly, Rockcastle students feel confident as they prepare to lead our Commonwealth to greatness in the 21st century.

With best regards, I am Sincerely,
Breton C. Jones

Suggestion system is alive at Tokico

Submitted by: Vickie Ellis

The suggestion system is alive and well at Tokico (USA) Inc. It's exercised by almost all production employees. Improvements and changes are made almost daily on the shop floor as a result of some serious thinkers and doers.

In 1991 we had a total of 571 suggestions with an average of 80 percent being accepted for implementation. Best suggestions are chosen on a monthly basis and receive $25 gift certificates.

Several employees were recognized Feb. 26, for their outstanding contribution for 1991. They were awarded $50 gift certificates from Hall's Restaurant.

It didn't work. The tumult intensified, and some of the dogs turned on each other, bringing blood. Then along about sundown the warm, March air got so rank and the ruckus so vexing that Athel and Dathel packed a satchel and spent the night with their daughter over in Mulshoe.

Toward the end of the week Constable Owen Uterback came upon Dump at the Eat 'N Pick and told him how some people were griping. Dump tilted his head, stared at Owen and squinted one eye, like Festus, that surly deputy on "Gunsmoke."

"There wouldn't be no problem" he said, "if some of them doin' the bitchin' kept their dogs at home—like I do."

Gobel thinks the Appleton City Council will enact a leash law before long, due in part to the fracas on Finley Hill. They talked about it last summer after Hack Newton's St. Bernard broke through the back door of the Second Baptist Church and gave his all behind the pulpit.

"It'll be a good law, long overdue," Gobel said, "but it makes a man wonder."

"About what?" I asked. "About how many laws wouldn't be on the books if folks thought half as much of the other feller's rights as they do their own."

Gobel pursed his lips. Then he said, "Of course, that kind of thinking goes beggin' these days."

"Driving home, I pondered the reality of Gobel's pessimism and recalled an insight of the French mystic, Aburt Jean. The opposite of love is not hate; it is indifference."

HERESAY

By: Jon Norman

The other day I came upon Gobel Nobels at the Eat 'N Pick Diner in Appleton over in Eden County. He said peace and quiet had prevailed there for some time—except for the turbulence that occurred at Dump Owen's place on Finley Hill last week. "Word has it that Dump's three beagles came into heat at the same time. Dump locked them in a little barn in his back yard and secured the entrances. But that didn't keep a prying wren from announcing their condition all over the hill. Quicker than a groom says "I do" at a shotgun wedding, a cadre of canine suitors jumped the fence and congregated around the barn, clawing, sniffing and whining. Those that couldn't scale the fence wailed like banshees.

Dump, a widower, works the night shift at Oval-E. Being deaf in one ear, he sleeps on the other and shuts out most of what goes on in the daytime. So, he did not realize what a commotion that pent-up passel was making.

Athel Goins, next door to Dump, got real wrought-up. Dathel, his wife, talked him out of blistering the pack with buckshot. So he set about to make them so sick they would abandon their beagled aspirations. He bought two packs of extra large wieners, laced them amply with Ex-Lax, and flung them to the mongrel mob.

Spring is just around the corner

There are few other states in the nation that offer the quality fishing diversity found in Kentucky. This month, opportunities for a number of different game fish species really become good as the spring spawning runs begin.

If you're like most anglers and really getting the itch to test the waters, chances are good that you won't have to travel far to find a good place to satisfy the early fishing urge.

Two "cousin" species are normally the first to provide a start to the spring fishing season. Sauger and walleye begin their spawning migration in late March in a number of different rivers. Sauger are most abundant in the Ohio and Kentucky rivers, and can be consistently taken below locks and dams on minnows and jigs, or combinations. The Kentucky Lake tailwaters is also a good area to connect with sauger.

The sauger's larger cousin, the walleye, starts making the move upstream to spawn when water temperatures reach the lower 50s. Quality fishing opportunities exist for walleye in the headwaters of the Cumberland River and the Nolichucky River. This species can also be found in the river systems that form Paintsville and Laurel river lakes.

Walleye can be found just below riffles in these streams and are often caught on both artificial and live bait. Low-light periods are usually best for walleye action since walleye are quite sensitive to light. Nighttime can sometimes be best when fishing for spawning walleye. Fishing in deeper pools just below shallow water areas with minnow-type crankbaits or jigs can produce well during daylight trips. Later in early May, walleye will start returning to main lakes, and can be picked up along muddy, clay banks along river channels.

A favorite experience for many fishermen is taking part in the spring white bass runs that occur at many reservoirs and in several rivers throughout the state. White bass head upstream in big schools in late March and early April to reproduce and at times, can be caught cast after cast after cast. Good runs happen in the Dix River above Herrington Lake, in tributaries along Kentucky and Bar Key lakes and in the Cumberland and Green rivers.

Good tactics to try include casting small spinners, popcye jigs rigged

Graduates

Paula J. Blevins, daughter of Paul and Doris Blevins of Mt. Vernon, recently graduated from Eastern Kentucky University with a B.S. degree in occupational therapy. Since graduation, Paula has successfully completed six months clinical training in Evansville, Indiana and Louisville and recently passed the National Certification Exam for Occupational Therapy. Occupational Therapy is a health and rehabilitative profession. The goal of an Occupational Therapist is to help individuals to become as independent as possible in daily life by remediateing or adapting physical cognitive or emotional deficits. Paula is employed as an Occupational Therapist at Baptist Regional Medical Center in Corbin.

under bobbers, or live minnows. At times in Herrington Lake, hybrid striped bass may also move into the creeks along with white bass. Although the hybrids have never been documented spawning, they do exhibit the same habits and upstream movement - going through the motions, if you will. This can concentrate, and make the hybrids easier to locate and catch. Depending on the strength of the white bass runs, both bank and boat fishing can be very good.

One other species which starts becoming active in late March is the muskellunge. Muskellunge, called muskie for short, move into the shallow water areas on Cave Run and Green River lakes looking for food early in the season. Large spinnerbaits and crankbaits are a favorite target of these super fighters when dropped into woody cover along creek banks.

Anglers who plan to try muskie should remember to bring along a dip net. Muskie have very large and sharp teeth, and grow quite large. Therefore a net helps immensely in getting the fish in the boat.

If it's fishing action you're interested in as the days begin to warm up, there's plenty around to enjoy. And to make sure you're up-to-date on all the information you'll need, remember to pick up a copy of the 1992 Kentucky Fishing Digest. This publication is available from the Ky. Dept. of Fish and Wildlife Resources, #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY 40601; phone (502) 564-4336 or from license outlet. Other pamphlets on muskie, sauger and walleye are also available upon request.
