Judge Venters moves murder trial to Lincoln

Circuit Judge Dan Venters has granted a change of venue in a local case that has been kicked around in Circuit Court since May of 1993. Earl Brent Kirby, 42, of Mt. Vermon went on trial in August for the 1993 shooting death of his uncle Lester Frankie Griffin, 49.

But, after two days of trying to seat a jury, Venters declared a mistrial because, according to his order, "so many jurors indicated that they had detailed knowledge of the allega-tions in the case, had formed opin-ions about material issues, and could not render a fair trial."

Venters ruide that the case be moved to Lincoln Circuit Court and be placed on the docket for Decem-ber 10.
Last year the 1993 murder indict-ment against Kirby was dismissed, but the ways indicated a short time later by another grand jury

The corn was then poured into a sack kept for that purpose it was a large heavy dust proof sack with a tying string attached to the top and usually belt about a bushed of corn. Then it was loaded onto the back of a mule, if one was available, or truck, if one was owned and taken to the grist mill to be ground into meal. A grist mill was often used by several communities so it might take the most of a day to get the meal ground and back home. Dear Editor,

1. Cathaleen Lovell, had a safety deposit box at Citzens Bank in Brod-haed. On June-4th, 1999, members of the Law Enforcement Agency obtained a search warrant for my home. During that search the officers took my safety deposit box keys from my purse. On July 14, 1999, 1 had a locksmith open my box. When I entered the box my rings and $400,00 were missing. Citziens Bank denies that anyone else has entered my box.

except for me. My attorney says they would not have done that. The bank wild no one go in my box because a card wasn't signed. Citizens Bank and the Law Binforcement have covered their tracks well. The important hing is that the public know it someone steals your stuff from your safety deposit box you will not have any proof that it was ever in there. It should do about this, or if you know any suggestions on what shappend contact me at P.O. Box 1364, Mt. Vernon, KY 4056.

Domestic violence: abusers and victims

By Linda C. House, M.A.
Family Life Counseling Service
The Rockeastle Domestic Violence Council is pleased to present the third article in a series of four the third article in a series of four acknowledging October as Domestic Violence Awareness Month. This article was written from a counselor's perspective and discusses character-tistics of abusers, reasons women stay and how counseling works with domestic violence. Batterers and abusing men come from all social, racial and cultural from all social, raicial and cultural levels. They share many, if not all of the following characteristics.

1. Inability to handle stress without ourbursts of violent behavior.

2. Negative attitudes toward women - thinks women are inferior, has rigid stereotypes about "a woman's place."

3. Was likely abused or dominated by his own father.

4. Blames others for his misfortunes, mistakes or failures.

5. Abuses drugs and/or alcohol. Refuses to admit he has a problem with it; becomes violent or irrational and blames his victim.

and blames his victim 6. Isolates his wife or girlfriend from the support of friends and family. May refuse to let her work, or cause her to lose her job.

7. Irrationally jealous and possessive. Accuses her of being with other men or wanting to be with other men.

Very controlling - wants to control her telephone calls, money, job, shopping, friends, etc.
 Requires perfection from wife

9. Requires perfection from wife and children, such as perfect meals, perfect housekeeping, staying out of his way, keeping quiet, etc.
10. Believes a man has the right to physically punish his wife and children. Tells them it's their fault and believes it's the only way to "teach them a lesson".

believes it's the only way to "teach them a lesson."

Abusers are often manipulative and can display a charming side to those outside the family. Most of them refuse to admit they have a problem and think their behavior is normal. Often the women in their famifies enable them to continue abusive behavior by accepting it as normal.

Women from all classes, races and cultural—backgrounds—become the victims of abuse. While there is no particular profile of the battered woman, many who stay in abusive relationships came from homes where violence was prevalent. When they stay in that environment long enough, they begin to have low opinions of themselves, and to make excuses for themselves, and to make excuses for heir absurves pouses and boyfriends. Some of the reasons women stay with absurve men include: 1. Fear of poverty. 2. Fear of being alone. 3. Fear of retribution from abuser, i.e., "I'll kill you if you ever leave "o" "I'll kill you if you ever leave "o" "I'll kill you if you ever leave "o" "I'll kill you if you ever leave have been been about the power of "I'll hurt your parents." 4. Fear of breaking up a family.

5. Fear of rejection from religious group or social group because of

6. Fear of not being believed or supported by lawenforcement, courts, social service agencies, family or friends.

Doesn't know she deserves

h. Doesn's better treatment.

When a woman in an abusive relationship enters t.erapy, she is not told what to do. Rather, she is educated about the difference between normal and abusive relationships. She normal and abusive relationships. She learns of the effect of domestic vio-lence on children. She is taught to be assertive, but not provocative. She learns ways to enhance her self-es-teem and self-respect. She learns that she has options and is taught safety measures. After going through the counseling process, a woman is less likely to make choices that will lead ard domestic violence.

Next week's article will describe the criminal court process from an attorney's perspective. If your or someone you know is in an abusive ".Ir. Pro" (Cont. from A8)

Fire hazard continues

Relief from recent rainfall has been short-lived in Kentucky. In fact, the commonwealth is still experiencing an extreme drought. Consequently, officials with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and the Kentucky Division of Foresty cofitium to caution all hundresses and other outdoor enthusiasts to take special care while afield.

Extremely dry conditions caused by drought have made the grass and woodlands very dry and fire can be ignited easily. "Extra precaution should be taken with any type of heat source," caution's Fire Management Chief Bernie Andersen with the Kentucky Division of Forestry. "The drough has produced extremely dry conditions, making the state's fields and woods very susceptible to fires." Every one involved in outdoor activities needs to be especially careful with potential fire ignition sources, including eigeneties, matches and exhibites in the fire in the state of the state of 1999, the Division of Forestry sup-pressed 592 fires that burned 14,730 acres. Outdoor burning bans are still in effect in 112 counties. The bans are issued by the county judge/executive and will remain in place at the discre-tion of each county. KDFWR law or forcement officers are enforcing all bans on open burning and other emergency measures designed to minimize the threat of brush and forest firm.

minimize the threat of brush and forest fires.

According to Diana Olszowy, En-vironmental Control Branch Man-ager with the Division of Forestry, counties that have lifted the burning bans have experienced an increase in fires. The increased winds and low moisture content of forest fuel, such as grass, leaves, etc., are causing the fires to burn hotter and move very rapidly.

Everyone is reminded to be very careful. Please do not throw cigarette butts, matches, charcoal or other flam-ing items on the ground. It only takes a spark to destroy acres of grass and woodlands.

"WHAT SAITH THE SCRIPTURES"

Our Lord least himself said in the great commission, "And he said mut-them, (6) we time all the world, and preach the googel to every vectors, the first believed and is hopping-dshall be saved, but he that believed in shall be dammed." Mark 16 15-16. Also in Matt 28-19, "to ye therefore, and each all attours, buffering them in the name of the Luther, and of the Son, and of the Holy (Brost." Jesus is the one who gives us this command to be buffered. It's not my idea that folks should be baptized, or how it is to be done, or what is the reason for doing it!

the done, or what is the reason for doing at!

The Bible reaches that baptism is by immersion. Consider Colossians

12. "Burned with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him rough the faith of the operation of God, who had raused him from the nat." Now we all understand how we bury people, we dig a hole, place or confinedwan the ground, and cover it over with dig. This is a had, that is, how we baptize people, we bury them completely down under the water

Now haptism is to be for the right reason. Jesus said it is a condition of salvation, as belief is a condition of salvation. "He that believelth and is salvation, as belief is a condition of salvation." He that believelth and is Salvated shall be served. "Notice, that men and women are to do both of these things in order to be saved, not believe only, or be haptized only. The measured man put it this way, "Then Peter said into them. Repert., and he haptized every one of you in the name of hears Christ for the remission of our and yo shall receive the grid of the Holy Ghost." Acts 2.33. He was ever that repentance and haptism are listed as the conditions of salvation by repertance only or haptism only. According to Acts 8.37-88, we see that the good confession of faith comes before one is baptized. Thus when we put these passages together, we learn God's plan of salvation. Hear in your sins! Why not humbly do what Jesus says, and be ve. Rep pent, Confess, ar

Norm would come home late from work and would sometimes disappear for two hours' l'or una ner arrand. He was more critical of her then he dever been before during their twelve-year massinge. Something else also became obvious: Vera blamed herself. "What did do wrong that drove him to another woman? If I had been a better wife, maybe he wouldn't have needed her.

woman? If I had been a better wise, maybe he wouldn't have needed her. I guess I am a failure as a wife." I tired or eassure Vera that the affair was not her fault, but this had little effect. She was overwhelmed with guilt. ⁴ On the other hand Norm did not seem to be the least bit bothered by guilt. Mostly he blamed Vera. "She neever has given me the affection that I need," he told me. "Any man would have done what I did if he were married to a cold fish like her. I needed some lowin' and she wouldn't give it to me."

Norm and Vera both needed to change their beliefs about the affair but in very different ways. Norm needed to take responsibility for his actions, and Vera needed to stop blaming herself.

I called both of them into my office for a talk. "Let me explain to you who is to blame when someone has an affair," I began. "Marriages are to blame for it." Norm's face fell at this point.

"Yera did not make you have an "affar," I continued. "No matter how bad the marriage was, you did not have to do that. You had many other options, including leaving, seeking counseling or having a long talk with Vera. Stop blaming Vera for the afan affair," I began. "Marriages are built by two people, and both are responsible for the condition of the marriage. You have both bold me that your marriage was not going well even before the affair. Whose fault is that? The blame rests on both of you. Both of you built that marriage and both are responsible for was in. Vera, you are responsible for your actions that made the marriage worse, and Norm, you are responsible for yours."

Norm smiled confidently at this point and said to Vera, "See, honey, it's just like I told you. The affair was out my failt."

"Wait a minute, Norm," I interrupted, "While both are responsible for the condition of the marriage, you, Norm, are responsible for the resp
