More low-income mothers and children in Kentucky may qualify fro a nutrition program because of annual federal gov-ernment revisions in poverty

On July 1, the revisions brought about a four to five percent increase in the annual income limits for families applying for WIC, formally known as the Special Supplemental Food Program for women, Infects and children. For example, the annual maximum income for a family of four increas a from $24,790 to $25,808.

The increase may assist families with incomes near the current maximums to become eligible for WIC, according to WIC Director Peggy Kidd.

"If there are Kentucky families who have been turned down for the WIC program because their income is just barely above the poverty level, they should contact their local health department about reapplying to see if they now qualify," Kidd said.

Approximately 100,000
Kentuckians currently receive WIC benefits monthly, Kidd said, compared to 94,000 in June

WIC provides nutrition edu cation and specific foods high in cation and speciaric loods right in protein, iron and vitamins A and C to low-income pregnant women, new mothers, infants and children up to five years of age who have health problems that can be improved through better nutrition.

The governor and his staff saw their trip to Fort Knox turn into a fright flight a few minutes after takeoff from Frankfort.

According to the press releases and first hand accounts, Jones and a staff member gripped each other's hands and began to pray as the copter went from a height of 150 feet to its descent to the ground.

I saw the footage of the helicopter and was pretty amazed that everyone survived the crash.

survived the crash.

It was a testimony to the experience of the helicopter pilots and their "grace under pressure," as they crash landed everyone somewhat safely to the match.

I guess there are a lot of thing survivors have to be thankful

Governor Jones, now at home in the governor's mansion, also took things one step further as he praised the hospital staff and doctors during his stay in the Frankfort hospital.

take on the issue of health care for Kentuckians. Jones, a democrat, has his eyes on the national arean with health care-form for Kentuckians. He is hoping that a bill (similar to the much heralded education reform) could provide the hasis for antional consensus if Akansas Gov. Bill Clin-ton is elected next president. Jones is basically correct - health care reform is needed. The system is basically oppres-

The system is basically oppres-ee -- old people are hustled in and out of the system on the basis of cost not need, many working poor fall be-tween the cracks, and more than one business or family has been bankrupted by the ever rising cost of health those who are to blame - the insur-nace industry, the politicians, the doctors, the hospitals, the drug com-panies and so on and so or the order Yes, Kentucky, it is a national issue and someone needs to press hadeal for reform. In Congress there have been two basic schools which include those who say socialized medicine is the contest and those who say fix needed, and those who say fix the system we have instead of opting out for national health care

I think most people feel we need reform, but how far should we go?

There are a number of common concerns that need to be addressed concerns that need to be addressed.

Those include health care for the elderly, neo-natal care, AIDS, the working poor, and in general-increased access so that a nickel's worth of tonic can avoid a dollar's worth of costry care.

Having lost my mother, who was in her 70s, last year to cancer after a debilitating stroke, I can tell you the system is not sympathetic to the needs of older Americans.

of older Americans.

Why it would take a college degree to figure out Medicare and instruce forms. They form a colossal heap piling up from the mailbox day after day when an elderly person requires pragoing health care.

Even for minimal health maintenance, the forms are oppressive and often nearly impossible to understand even if one can fill them out.

Thepe that health care reform care vidence some caring when it comes to older Americans.

They need simpler forms (which are also less expensive), and a health care expensive they can understand. Lear remember my dying mother, who several days before being told of the cancer, sought to be admitted to the hospital.

She could neither eat or care for herself-and it was difficult to line up homebound care while I was working - she knew she was sick and demanded to be admitted. would-take a college de ing -- she knew she was demanded to be admitted.

I called for her doctor, was told he was not on call and to call a doctor who was taking care of his patients. I did so and he said he would admit. After bringing my mother to the emergency room her primary physician said not to admit her. That was manify because the insurance companies and Medicare have to have their pound of Hesh-cost accountability. I was later told by several other doctors that it would have bear simple to admit my mother on the basis of several grounds under which she would have qualified. The upshot is that young Americans have the dienmina of how best to care for their aging parents?

Our system, in many areas, shows

Our system, in many areas, shows that it is bankrupt. The American people are at wits end with health care and something will have to be done during the next presidential term.

Health care often is not weighed out in terms of dollars, but at points where conditions are intercepted.

Expensive conditions can often be diverted by reasonable doses of health care. Heart attacks and strokes an often be avoided with treatments for high blood pressure.

Lean remember going through the University of Kentucky in the late

They had an excellent student health services program that worked with students on their health in a positive environment.

Tprobably haven't been as healthy since. The point being that what was then a $15 fee for students probably saved a lot of problems down the road because it afforded an accessible system to the students.

Tve offen thought, that a nationalized health plat would need some of those same reasonings to be successful.

I'm thankful that Governor Jones is making progress at getting back in the saddle again.

With any luck, Kentuckians might have a watershed of a health plan after the special session. Let's hope so.

Right at dark we went over to Sam Caudill's house and picked up a fiberglass boat and Sam's son, Jamie, Jamie is 16 years old and stout as a mule. He's also the reason I'm alive today because there were at least fifteen places that the beat would have turned. upside down if Jamie hadn't steadied her as we went down the river. As soon as I get finished with this column I'm gonna re-write my will and make sure that Jamie gets a hand full of 22 shells or something of equal im-portance in case I die sooner than I plan on doing.

We got the boat on the river and commenced tieing on hooks. Keeter bought 300 feet of what he called staging line" at a little store on the Mouth of Leatherwood. We bought hooks that you could have hung a side of beef with and the line was still side of beet with and the innewas still too big to get through the eyes. You could have used it for plow line and the mule would have complained because it was too heavy, but here we went, tieing that stuff onto every limb that hung out over the water. And cussing a lot. A lot of limbs hang awful low.

We also tied to grapevines and old stumps and I sat square in the middle of the boat. We went through several of the boat. We went inrough several rapids in which Jamie got-out and hung onto the back of the boat to keep it straight. As I mentioned before, Jamie Caudill is the only reason that you aren't reading about my drown ing in your newspaper today.

As a result of all that effort, we caught three big caffish when we went back down the river to check the hooks. And we had several places where fish had got off or actually broke that plow line.

We put the hooks up in the trees or otherwise out of the water and I'm going back this week-end. Jamie and Lare goma spend most of the day on Big. Creek and Turkey Creek and Lare to gone spend most of the day on Big. Tax time near for extension filers

For the 4,647,000 taxpayers who chose an automatic extension as April 15 neared to give them more time to-file their tax returns, their new filing deadline--this time August 17--is near.

The Internal Revenue Service The Internal Revenue Service advises these taxpayers to read their tax instructions thoroughly and check their returns carefully before filing. For those who owe tax but can't pay the full amount due, the IRS advises them to file their tax return in order to avoid a late filing penalty and pay whatever portion of their tax bill they

What Saith the Scriptures'

The scriptures abundantly teach us that marriage is to be a permanent relationship, a union for life. In a day when homes are breaking up at a rate of over 150%, we need to emphasis the scriptural mandate on the a rate of over 150%, we need to emphasis the scriptural mandate on the subject.

Paul in I Cor. 7:39 says "The wife is bound by the law as long as her husband liveth; but if her husband be dead, she is al liberty to be married to whom she will, only in the Lord." Again, In Rom. 7:2 "for the woman which hath an husband is bound by the law to her husband so long as he liveth; but if her husband be dead, she is loosed from the law of her husband. Of course, what is said for the wife, the same applies to the husband. Beloved friends, marriage is for life, "till death do you part." Men and women both need to be committed to a marriage and its permanency. Some enter a marriage as if it were a "trial" relationship, "we'll try it for a while and see if it will work out, and if not we'll just go our separate ways." God will hold us accountable to our marriage vows and responsibilities. We do not have to marry, but if we do, we must fulfill our obligations of marriage. must fulfill our obligations of marriage.

must fulfill our ooilgations of marriage.

Jesus emphasized the permanence of marriage in Matt. 19:4-6,

"Have ye not read, that he which made them at the beginning made them male and female, and said, for this cause shall a man leave father and male and female, and said, for this cause shall a man leave (father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife and they twain shall be one flesh; Wherefore, have no more twain, but one flesh. What thegfore God hath joined together, let not man put asonder? Lessu sues 4 figures of speech to show us the permanence of marriage, #1 - There is to be a leaving and a cleaving, i.e. to be "glued" together, #2 - The twain shall be "one flesh," #3 - God "joins" or yokes them together, #4 - Man is not to put asunder the relationship. We need to impress upon our children—and young people that marriage is for flie. And thus it should not be entered into lightly.

People must be mature enough to be committed to marriage. The immature and indifferentought never toget married and cause heartacke, sorrow and pain for themselves, their mates, their families and society. One man, one woman for life that's God's law for marriage!

A Series Of Informative "Plain Talk" Thoughts Regarding Your Money Matters

Bad Checks Are Bad For Everybody

There's no polite way of saying it: "Don't write bad checks

Sometimes a mistake in balancing the checkbook can cause you to overdraw your account, which can in turn make it necessary for a bank to return 'insufficient fund" checks.

It sometimes seems that the same people continuously write bad checks without the proper funds in the bank to cover them. This causes problems for the merchant, creates extra work for the bank, and creates a very poor impression of the person who does it.

The way a person handles his checking account is carefully considered by the bank when deciding whether or not to loan that person money.

company town by the federal government.

Making its way slowly into the mountains and along the Big South Fork of the Cumberland River, the train is a diesel, not a coalburner, and it drops several hundred feet as ir progresses to the recreation area where passengers disembark for an ahour or more stay to visit the area, and, of course, take pictures.

You board again for the trip back to downtown Stearns where the depot is located.

On the trip last Thursday, there was entertainment both ways and also at the Blue Heron depot.

There are pleny of exhibits which bring to life the joys and sorrows of people helping to carvé out al lving in this remote area.

"People whose work hours coincide with the county clerk's hours, college students away from home and new residents to Kentucky have reported they used the line to register," Babbage said.

"Those who have used the line said the convenience was the most attractive feature of the program," Babbage added.

Since the line was activated on Juy 3, MCI has doubled its capture to quickly handle the calls.

Callers who use the line between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 .m. (EDT) are connected to a registrar in either their county clerk's office or the state board of elections office. The registrar takes the necessary information, enters it into a computer and a computer generates a registra-tion card which is mailed to the caller. The registration is completed after the caller verifies the accuracy of the information, signs the card and returns it to the proper county clerk

Protective Parenting

By: Ginny Gilpatrick Nearly 95 percent of Cocaine users and 80 percent of alcoholics are children of chemical dependent parents. Even when children are separated from their natural parents at birth and brought up in foster or adoptive homes, they developchemi-cal 'dependencies at the same high rate.

cal dependencies at the same high rate.

Since last week's column touched on the issue of inherited brain chemistry and the cause of alcoholism, several people have ghestioned me about it and wanted to know more. The following information, and more, is nicely explained in a little book, Drugs. The Altered Brain, by Nydia Hanna who is an expert in the field. (I will be happy to order a copy for anyone who is interested; the cost is $2, phone me at 256-3982). The billions of nerve cells in the human brain send messages to one another by way of chemicals called neurotrasmitters; There are tiny spaces between the cells and these chemicals are released from one cell.

chemicals are released from one cell to bridge the gap and be taken up by receptors in the next cell. Transmitters and receptors fit together much like pieces of a jigsaw puzzle. Each person has a delicate balance of neurotransmitters unlike that of anyone else. The chemicals provide and psychological stability, capability, and psychological stability. Only if the balance is maintained can we concentrate, remember, coordinate the concentrate, remember, coordinate and cope. There are about 12 different neurotrafismitters that are changed by alcohol and other drugamine and endorphine. The sensations of pleasure that we get from exercise, sex and even scratching an iteh there is too little in the brain, we feel depressed and unfulfilled. Sertionin, another transmitter affected by alcohol, is responsible for our feeling of calm and well-being. If levels of serionin are blocked we may become aggressive and violent or depressed.

Drugs interfere by releasing or blocking neurotransmitters in specific ways. There are three categories of mind-altering drugs: depressants (alcohol, sleeping pills etc.), stimulants (cocaine, caffeine, nicotine, etc.) and mixed action drugs (marijuana, LSD, inhalents, etc). Stimulants inthe release of neurotransmit crease the release of neurotransmit-ters (until the supply is used up), while depressants block the release or destroy neurotransmitters. Mixed action drugs act first as stimulants, then as depressants. Alcohol in the brain is broken down into a chemical called THIQ.

Alcohol in the brain is broken down into a chemical called THIQ. THIQ is so similar to certain neurotransmitters that it "loods" the brain cells into substituting it at the "jigsaw puzzle" receptor site. The brain is tricked into producing less of the natural chemicals, and as drinking and/or drugging progresses, the normals is shut down. THIQ also causes ratory, mice injected with THIQ will drink until they die; normal mice avoid alcohol altogether.

Now heridity is important because the percentage of THIQ produced by a person is genetically set. So alco-holics and their children produce much more THIO (1200 times more of its derivative, THP) then do other people. And when they drink, they experience a much greater release from pain and everyday problems than others. Also, people who have inherited alcoholic tendencies do not inherited alcoholic tendencies do not inherited alcoholic tendencies do not have the usual number of endorphin and dopamine receptors in the first place. As a result, they have a harder time coping with pain and problems and feel more stress and anxiety than people who have a normal amount of these pleasure-producing chemicals. It is important to understand that anyone who drinks alcohol on a regardar basis can cancel out their body natural ability to handle pain. But the alcoholic will reach this point much more quickly.

Alcoholicis then are not "bad."

alcoholic will reach this point much more quickly.

Alcoholics then are not "bad," weigh "ordinary people. They are people fighting an uphill battle against abnormal chemical reactions in their brain. They can, with support, control their choice to drink, but they cannot predictably control their behavior while drinking, including their ability to limit themselves to one or two drinks. Prevention of the disease is much easier than recovery. But the burden of prevention, unfortunately, ress on parents and society. Parents have the most influence over their children at the age when they first begin to consider alcohol. Education and insistence on strong family values remain the best defenses against the pressures of the outside world.

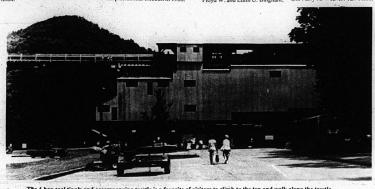

Help for special tax problems available from IRS

For uxpayers suffering a signifi-cant hardship due to a federal tax problem, the Internal Revenue Serv-ice (IRS) says help is available. The first step to solving your tax problem is to try to work through normal IRS chaffnels. If that doesn't clear it up, call IRS and ask to be referred to the Problem Resolution Office (PRO) for the state of Ken-tucky.

That special assistance office can That special assistance office can take the extra steps necessary to help resolve chronic problems. For example, persons involved in hardship situations brought about by an IRS tax administration action, such as a tax enforcement or collection action may find relief here. In appropriate cases, the Problem Resolution Office can work with the taxpayer to have the tax action postponed while the case is reviewed.

The State Department of Educa-tion Evaluation team visited Cum-berland College in March of this year. The Cumberland College Educa-tion program was "approved with stiuplations."

The evaluation involved five categories with eighteen standards. The two standards evaluated as "not met" included a lack of documentation of included a lack of documentation of faculty research and heavy faculty work loads. These issues have al-ready been addressed by the college. Cumberland College President, Jim Taylor, said 'I am very pleased with our evaluation. Since the issues cited were technical in nature and no areas of concern were found which implied any weakness in the quality of our graduates: the evaluation validates the high quality of Cumberland's education program." Waste reduction and recycling management

New cate regulations and public support make recycling and solid waste management one of the largest public issues this year.

These new state regulations require that every county outline ways on how they will recycle, collect and reduce waste. 'said forain Inflanger, Extension specialist in development with the University of Renacky Coltege of Agriculture.

The regulations will have a greater potential impact on rural counties, since they have smaller populations and more constrained tax bases.
According to Infanger, solid waste planning will have to be cost effective and innovative to be successful in rural counties.

"Each county must show how bouscholds and private businesses will recdue waste by twenty-five percent by 1997," said Inganger.

One way to reduce waste is to concentrate on yard wastes and paper products. Over one-half of all the material in landfills is grass clippings, cardboard, newspapers, and other paper and yard wastes. "The only problem with recycling

"The only problem with recycling is that it is not cost-effective," Infanger said. "The reason for this is that the revenue from the sale of recycled material does not equal the respectation, collection and han-dling costs in the current market environment."

Also, the low prices for recycled

Also, the live pixets on recycles and appear make recycling not as attractive to some organizations as it once was. One study shows that as little as one-third of the program costs were recovered from the sale of recycled materials. Expanding market opportunities and revenues from recycled materials and efficiency in program operation are keys to making recycling programs more cost-effective; said Infanger.

KDFWR Commission approves fishing law changes; dove season dates

During its June 12 meeting, the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR) Commission voted to make several important, urcoming changes in fish-ing creel and size limits, as well as set dates for the 1992 fall dove and wood duck seasons. Pendine legislative approach dates for the 1992/fail dove and wood duck seasons.

Pending legislative approval, the following effisinges will be reduced from 10 fish to six fish per angler, at Lake Cumberland, a 10-inch minimum size limit of the free for crappie; and, at Barren River Lake, a 15-inch minimum size limit on largemouth and smallmouth bass was approved, execut that one largemouth bases was approved, execut that one largemouth as the supproved execut that one largemouth executions are supproved executions. approved, except that one largemouth or smallmouth under the size limit to or smallmouth under the size limit to be permitted in the daily rerel. Also starting March 1, 1993, an-glers fishing the Tennessee River from Kentucky Läke dam to the Ohio River, and the Cumberland River from Barkley Lake dam to the Ohio will be limited to keeping three striped bass per day instead of five per day. The commission established a five fish daily read limit and no 15 inch

The commission established a five-lish daily creel limit and an 15-inch minimum size limit for any combina-tion of hybrid striped bass, white bass and yellow base caught from Guist Creek, Fishtrap and Taylorsville lakes, beginning March 1, 1993. A new satewide daily creel limit of three brown trout was also approved. One other new fishing law was passed to apply to the main stem of the Elkhorn in Franklin County downstream to where the creek joins the Kentucky River. Starting March 1, 1993, anglers fishing this portion of Elkhorn Creek will not be allowed to keepany largenouth or smallmouth to keep any largemouth or small mouth bass between 12 and 16 inches long. Largemouth and smallmouth caught that fall into the 12-16-inch "slot' must be released. In any combination, no more than two largemouth or smallmouth over 16 inches may be kept as part of the six fish daily limit. Anglers may harvest any combina-tion of six largemouth or smallmouth under 12 inches per day. The new slot limit only applies to the portion of the creek described above. And lastly, regarding fishing laws, the following size and creel limits were set for Lincol Homestead State Park Lake beginning January 1, 1993. 51-inch minimum size limit and three fish daily creel limit on largemouth tion, no more than two largemouth or bass: 10 fish daily creel limit on any combination of bluegill or redear sun-fish (shellcrackers) over seven inches long; and three fish daily creel limit on channel catfish. Lincoln Home-scad will be open to fishing during daylight hours only and restricted to electric motor use only. (The lake is scheduled to be open to the public Jan. 1, 1993)

n addition to these fishing regula-ns, the KDFWR Commission also recommended dove season dates as follows: September 1-30, October 10-November 2 and Nov. 28 - December 3. The daily bag limit of 15 doves remains unchanged. Early wood duck hunting season dates were set from Sept. 16 - 20 with a two-bird daily limit. Dove and wood duck season dates are tentative, pending accep-tance by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Season dates receive final approval in August.

Changes in early waterfowl season to include teal

During the five-day, September duck season in Kentucky, Sept. 16-20, hunters will be permitted to take teal and wood ducks, according to Lauren Schaaf, wildlife director teal and wood ducks, according to Lauren Schauf, wildlife director for the Kentucky Department of Fishand Wildlife Resources (KDFWR). The daily limit for the early duck season will be two teal and two wood-ducks of either sex. Shooting hours for the season will be from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset local time.

In the receit past, teal-were not permitted in the harvest during the September season. However, their populations are much improved which prompted the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to permit hunting the species during this experimental assessor, 'said Seaterfowl hunters are cautioned to positively identify the species before firing, and that steel' shot is reautived for all waterfowl

Sportsmen pay for conservation

Ready for a test question? Here es: What group of Kentuckians goes: What group of Kentuckians have spent more money toward the conservation of all kinds of wildlife resources than anyone else, includ-ing taxpayers? If you answered "sportsmen," you go to the head of the class.

A relatively unknown fact that many state residents don't realize is that paying state income tax does not include helping finance wildlife conservation efforts conducted by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR). Most people believe that when they pay their share of state income tax, that their share of state income tax, that part of that money goes to support appraish part of that money goes to support appraish state agencies. That's a pretty logical assumption, but of true in this case. Sportsmen, who through the years have spent millions and millions and millions and fishing, foot the entire bill that funds the work of the KDFWR top toporoide and maintain recreasing opportunities for all Kentuckians, not just hunters and fishers.

The purchase of a hunting or fishing license Supports many various

The purchase of a flutting of issu-ing license supports many various wildlife conservation programs such as restoring river otters and ospreys, endangered species research, and wildlife law enforcement work. One other major benefit sportsmen's dol-lars mean to all Kentuckians is the purchase, preservation and manage-ment of over 50 public wildlife areas ment of over 30 public wildfule areas throughout the state. The KDFWR is the largest public landowner among state resource conservation agencies, all due to those who buy licenses to hunt and fish.

Surveys conducted by the KDFWR show that public use of agency-owned wildlife management areas is 10 times greater by those that do not hunt or fish than those who do. Many more visitors take advantage of these publie lands to observe or photograph wildlife, picnic, camp and hike. Yet these opportunities would not be available if sportsmen hadn't paid the bill.

Kentucky has about 1 million sportsmen, close to one-third of the population who enjoy hunting, fishing or both. But while this sounds like a large number, the truth is that halfa large number, the truth is that half-again this many of Kentucky resi-dents enjoy wildlife-associated re-reation that doesn't include hunting or fishing. Almost one out of every two Kentuckians-engage in some form of recreation associated with wildlife that don't contribute to KDFWR programs monetarily. Certainly it's no secret that the cost of supplying and maintaining wild-life-related recreation continues to grow very rapidly. Sooner or later, all those who enjoy wildlife and partake of what wildlife adds to life will be called upon to help share the cost. Sportsmen have done the overwhelm-ing majority of it alone for decades, and it seems only fair that the rest of the resource users, themselves the majority in numbers, be willing to do

Post office aggravation disturbing to serenity

One of the best things about get-ting older I have found is that I have been more able to get my priorities straight -- to not "sweat the small change" as the youth of my genera

n said. It has made for a much more peaceful life, my blood pressure is no prob Ithas made for a much more peace-fullife, my blood pressure is no problem and I am sure my friends and family enjoy the respite after years of watching me get upset over really minor occurrences.

However, my much-fought-for-serenity takes a beating every moring when I go to the local post office to pick up my mail. Not only is the design ugly but the "postage stamp" parking lot is obscene. I predict that at some point there will be a fatality in that lot mainly because there is simply not adequate room to maneuver a vehicle in and out safely.

At the risk of having my mail distributed to the wrong boxes (I'm not worried, Rose and Annette wouldn't let them), I have to say the U.S. Postal Service did us a great disservice when they took our post office off Main Street and made it as inconvenient as possible to get our mail.

I realize that all this weeping and I realize that all this weeping and wailing at this date isn't going to do any good, but this is my very own column and I can use it as a pressure valve release if I want. It's better than going home and taking my frustrations out on Travis or Allison because it is such a daily trial to get my mail

I have seriously considered sending an employee pick up the mail just to relieve the daily shattering experience but I'm afraid they would wind upas the aforementioned fatality and, in addition to my sorrow. I'm not sure workmen's comp would cover that sort of hazardous duty.

But, enough said. We didn't start griping and pitching a fit in time obviously or we might have been rewarded for fussing as Midway (a small community) in my home county of Woodfordy was. They were going to take their post office out of the business district (as they did ours) and the citizens there pitched such a fit that, I'm told, they left the old post office open and in use but built the new facility also. Midway has maybe 750 people in their city limits but they obviously know how to get their way with the federal beaurage.

I just want to know who decided togo with Tasterm Kentucky Cheap" for the design.

Nothing personal local employ-ces, of course.

You may be tired of hearing about it but the deadline for the Rockeastle History 300s is September 1 with the deadline for the Rockeastle History 300s is September 1 and there will be no extension after this date. I am one of those who has not submitted a family history but I'm going to, I promise and you should also. This is an important record and most imaggratum fourure generations. Grandchild#4arrivedsafelylast Thursday. Our daughter, Jane hursday. Our daugniter, Jane and her husband, Doug, welcomed their first child, Sean Douglas. We are now even, 2 boys and 2 girls and with each one, 1 have felt a little more "over the hill."

I know it's foolish to worry about advancing age because, as a friend points out constantly, consider the alternative. But, when you have to consider your energy level everytime you get ready to do something that you have always done - ride a bike, work in the gardene Cean house, go to the post office, you realize that whether the alternative is no fun, neither is estime older. older me aircritative is no tun, neither is getting older.

And, besides, after seven children, its a little unnerving to have friends congratulate you on the birth of a grandchild rather than a child.

The actions fosme members of the "Dream Team" took some of the sheen off the Olympics for ne this year.

Charles Barkley, with his Ugly American attitude and Michael Jor-dan's ho-hum "I've been here before" approach to the pageantry made me wish for a group of college players to whom the Olympics meant some-whom the Olympics meant some-thing.

I have heard the argument that other countries send "professionals" to the games but it depenerated this year into a "our professionals" are better than your professionals' has a better than your professionals' has a dawhat did i prove? Now, if a bunch of college players had man-aged to beat their "professionals" then it would have meant something and we would have been spared listening to "The Mouth" Charles Barkley (and watching him in action on and off the watching him in action on and off the court) and the inconsequential pos-turing over the Nike/Reebok debate.

Dear Editor,
In July, I met with the fiscal court, this is what I told them. I'm one of the election officers in West Brodhead. I told them, as they already knew, we get $60,003 a day for serving. I said this seems to be big pay for one days work, which it is, But remember, we are to be there at $5.00 or near that time, and when we get the polls closed it is near 7 p.m., that is near 14-hours and that amounts to something just a little less than $5.00 per hour.
This is what I fold them in closing. If you all can grant us a $10 raise on the day we would certainly appreciate it. But if not we would not be mad atthem. This is what what I dikk for failthe election officers to contact their magnets in the interests in their precinct, and thank

Congressman Harold Rogers Report to Kentucky

Progress on the Garbage Bill

As you probably know, I've been fighting for a long time to give our communities the right to keep East Coast garbage out of their landfille

I'm pleased to report that we're making significant progress I'm pleased to report that we're making significant progress. The Senate recently approved a version of the legislation I introduced that would allow counties and local communities to block the shipment of interstate waste into their landfills. They did the right thing, and I congratulate them for taking thaily use same as my nit.

The House Energy and Commerce Committee, meanwhile, has approved solid waste legislation that includes a provision substantially the same as my bill.

The full House has yet to vote on the proposal, but a decision could come fairly soon — possibly as soon as September.

The need for approval is greater than ever, because the Supreme Court has struck down a Michigan law — similar to one enacted last year in Kentücky — that allows county governments to control the flow of earhage into their landfills. flow of garbage into their landfills.

The Supreme Court said the law violates a clause in the Constitution giving Congress exclusive authority to regulate interstate commerce.

My bill -- and the one just approved by the Senate -- would give local governments the specific authority to block such out-of-state waste shipments It is also consistent with the law now on the books in Kentucky.

If our people don't want their backyards to become a dumping ground for New York and New Jersey garbage, they ought to be able to stop these shipments. They should not be at the mercy of interstate trash haulers who don't care about the communities they ave with this waste.

We need legislation that gives our local governments -- the power that is closest to the people -- the right to decide what goes into their landfills

The Senate saw the wisdom of giving our communities the control they-deserve. It's time for the House to do the same.

My wife had her first experi-ences with "morning sickness"

All I can say is, "Blame it on

It all started last Thursday, when my wife and I went to the doctor for ur first check-up as expectant parents. (Okay, actually it started a few months ago during a full moon, but that's another story that will never be

"Have you had any morning sickness?" the doctor asked Mary

"No," she replied.
"Oh---kay," the doctor said, then slowly shook her head and gave us a wicked little sneer

That's it, I thought to myself.
Tomorrow my wife's peaceful pregnancy will end.

Sure enough, it did, as noth ing, and I do mean nothing, found a way to stay down in her stom-ach for longer than 20 seconds without coming back at twice the speed of sound. "Well, it's official. You're preg-nant," I said, trying to ease the tension that was mounting in the bathroom

"Get....away," she growled at me in a voice similar to that heard in the Amityville Horror

From that moment on, I knew that I was beginning to lose my sweet, loving wife, who was slowly transforming into some-thing commonly known as "Expectant Woman."

cataclysmic situation that occurs when the husband has gone too far, they said. The husband can tell when he has reached this point, because, as Bill Cosby said in one of his stage routines, an orange light will start coming out of the wife's head, then the head will split open, with snakes and other evil creatures flying out of the head to destoy the evil husband.

After thinking long and hard about the situation, I've come to the conclusion that this whole problem is "The Bean's" fault. After all, it is "The Bean" that is making Mary Sue's stomach volatile. And it's "The Bean" that will be responsible for her inevitable weight gain.

To save my own skin, I've been having some father to Bean talks urging it to behave.

Being my child, however, it probably won't listen.

Rogers to campaign in Fifth

Congressman Hal Rogers sets off today on a campaign tour that will take him to every county in the new Fifth Congressional District. He'll be at the judicial annex in Mt. Vermon at 10 a.m., Aug. 24 in the circuit courtroom.

Mt. Vermon at 10 a.m., Aug. 24 in die circuit courtroom.

"Through September 5, I'll be visiting every single county in the Fifth District—all 270 of them, Rogers said. "I'll be stopping by post offices, country stores and fire halls, visiting senior citizen centers and health clings informat town meetings, speaking to civic groups and holding informat town meetings. Throughout Eastern Kentucky."

Rep. Rogers is seeking his seventh term and, with it, a vote of support for his continuing efforts to bring jobs and opportunity to eastern Kentucky.

jobs and opposition.

"We'll be covering a lot of ground during these three-plus weeks on the road, but I'm really looking forward to it," he said. "Because of redistrieng, 45 percent of the people in the new Fifth District are new to me.

"I'm going to have to get to know thousands of voters in the new com-

Talking about money can bring families together

Money problems are cited as a major cause of divorces. In many instances, the real problem is an inability to discus family money situations.

"Each family member has different values and opinions about spending and saving money," said Carol Benson, Laurel County Extension Agent for Home Economics. "The greater the difference of the saving opinions, the greater potential for conflict. When these differ-ences are ignored, resentment ences are ignored, resentment builds up and conflicts eventua money decision in which they are involved.

Kentucky retailers continue to maintain growth trend

The number of retail trade jobs in Kentucky grew by 51.7 percent between 1974 and 1989 based on data provided by the Bureau of Economic Analysis. The 51.7 percent growth in re-tail trade jobs compares favora-bly to the 33.9 percent growth overall in jobs for Kentucky.

There were 213,429 retail trade jobs in 1974; 252,515 in 1979; 226,730 in 1984; and 323,700 in 1989.

During the slow growth of the early 1980s, 14,000 (1979-84) jobs were replaced by a growth of 57,000 (1984-849).

Retail trade accounted for 16.1 percent of all Kentucky jobs in 1974, and 18.3 percent of all jobs in 1989. In 1974, retail trade was Kentucky's fourth largest employer, behind manufacturing, government, and services. In 1989, retail trade became Kentucky's second-largest employer, behind only services.

Earnings in retail trade totalled $1.332 billion in 1974. In 1989, retail trade earnings to-talled $3.716 billion. Earnings per job for retail trade were $11,479 in 1989 compared to $20,003 for overall jobs in Kentucky.
